MINSK CONFERENCE.

STRANGE SILENCE BROKEN AT LAST.

OFFICIAL BOLSHIEV REPORT.

LONDON, August 18.
At last the silence at Minsk has been broken by an official Bolshiev report of the proceedings there yesterday. The conference opened at 7 o'clock in the evening with a speech by Danilovsky, Chairman of the Russian Delegation, who reviewed the history of Russo-Polish relations and underlined Russia's Pacific policy. He emphasised Russia's respect for Poland's independence and her right to determine her own form of government. He also said that Russia must demand from Polish landlords such guarantees against renewed attacks as would not be necessary from the workers and peasants of Poland.

The conference adjourned until August 19.

"EXPLOITERS OF HUMAN LABOUR ABOLISHED."

LONDON, August 18.
The Bolsheviks claim that the establishment of Soviets is progressing in Eastern Galicia. The new authorities are "abolishing landlords, manufacturers, bankers and other exploiters of human labour." All real personal property is being transferred to the State.

NO AMERICAN LOAN TO POLAND.

WASHINGTON, August 18.
The State Department has accepted the view of the Treasury that the government cannot lend money to Poland as the sum of $250,000,000 appropriated for loans to friendly European states is available only for operations against enemy states under which Russia is technically not included.

AN INTERNATIONAL CONSPIRACY?

PARIS, August 18.
The Temps fully agrees with Mr. Lloyd George's frankness regarding the "Council of Action" threats and declares that there exists an international conspiracy not only against the Treaty of Versailles but against the British Empire, the directors of which are carefully concealing from the workers their real aim, which is the dissolution of the Empire.

POLES CLAIM MARKED NEW SUCCESS.

LONDON, August 18.
A Polish communique dated August 17 claims marked new successes. All Bolshevik attacks against Warsaw have been repelled and a new counter-offensive has begun on the line of the Demblin (Ivazgorod). Kock capturing a number of towns. The enemy is retreating in a panic from the Vistula in the Ostrowek section.

SUCCESSFUL COUNTER-OFFENSIVE.

PARIS, August 18.
A message from Warsaw states that the Polish counter-offensive, in which French officers, including two generals, are participating, on the front line is developing most successfully. The Bolsheviks have been repulsed along the whole northern front.

FRENCH MUNITIONS HELD UP.

PARIS, August 18.
The Allied High Commissioner at Danzig, Sir Reginald Tower, is holding up French ships with munitions for Poland on the ground that he has insufficient Allied troops to preserve order if further munitions are unloaded. French opinion is protesting on the ground that the Allied doctrine in wartime was that neutrals could furnish munitions without abandoning their neutrality.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE COVENANT.

LONDON, August 18.
Four amendments to the League of Nations Covenant will be submitted by Denmark, Norway, and Sweden for the consideration of the League at Geneva on January 1, one providing a fixed annual meeting, the second a special meeting on the demand of ten members of the League, a third making obligation to resort to arbitration more absolute and precise, and a fourth permitting a state in the vicinity of a blockaded state to maintain a certain degree of intercourse with the latter if necessary to prevent the blockaded state attacking its neighbour.

A SPIRITED DEFENCE.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, August 18.
Mr. Baker, Secretary for War, addressing the Democratic State Convention, made a spirited defence of the League of Nations. He declared that there would be no peace or disarmament without Article X of the Versailles Treaty, which was America's own invention.

OLYMPIC GAMES.

General Wrangel is holding his own. General Wrangel's raiders crossed the Don, and occupied Konstantinovskaya, cutting off the Tauric-Ekaterinodar Railway and threatening to isolate the Kuban Cossacks.
The French warships in the Black Sea will, it is not improbable, lend a hand to General Wrangel.

THE REAL TROTSKY.

A BRILLIANT GAMBLER.

No man for the job!—this was for many years the curse of modern Russia. The old regime dragged out its agony without lighting upon a statesman to save the Empire. The Great War and the Liberal Revolution gave birth to no heroes. The Soviet, whose label—Communism—precisely implies an absolute negation of individualism, owes its power, by a caprice of fate, chiefly to the forceful personality of its two promoters—Lenin and Trotsky.

Although these men to-day ironically symbolize the two crown-shorn heads of the pitifully bedraggled Russian eagle, there is a striking dissimilarity between them. Whereas Lenin is a dreamer, for whom Karl Marx stands as a Christ and his doctrine as a gospel, Trotsky is essentially a man of action, unswayed by any Socialistic shibboleths, and prompted only by insatiable personal ambition. Lenin championed Social Revolution because he sincerely believed his life's mission was to be the St. Paul of Marxism; Trotsky
seconded him for different and purely selfish reasons. In Imperial Russia all paths to a brilliant career were closed for a man of his origin; the Liberal camp, where intensive political partisanship prevailed, seemed equally unfavourable for his aspiration; Revolution remained obviously his only road to power.

Lenin is fanatically devoted to his Soviet system, of which he does not consider himself master, but merely primus inter pares; Trotsky is only waiting till the time is ripe to fling
the Soviets aside and himself seize sole dictatorship. Accordingly, his secret motto for the time being is—
Tout pis, tout mieux.

A chauffeur once kept him waiting 10 minutes for his car; Trotsky,
without saying a word, drew a revolver and shot him dead. Whereas Lenin often saved the life of a man needlessly sentenced upon the appeal of his relatives, Trotsky invariably replies:—"The word 'mercy' has no place in our programme."

Lenin's star is now on the decline,
that of Trotsky is rising.

ASTUTE ISOLATION.
Trotsky assumed quite an exceptional position in the Communist Party as soon as its other leaders split into two opposing factions; the Extremists—believers only in terrorism and world-revolution—and Moderates, eventually prepared to compromise in order to secure for Russia a permanent regime as near orthodox Marxism as possible. He astutely isolated himself and attracted a number of followers,
who may all be termed Oppositists. This gave him a free hand to foster disputes between the two main groups, and so to spin the fine threads of a skilful intrigue for his own ends. The Soviet, which seemed eager to patronize Jews, found a determined opponent in the Orthodox Church, always strongly anti-Semitic.

Trotsky did not lose the first opportunity to smooth his own path towards favourable personal intercourse with this powerful antagonist to Bolshevism. The Patriarch of Russia, applied for an additional ration, apportioned by decree to men of learning, to which, as doctor of Theology, he felt himself entitled.
Trotsky instantly saw that he got it.
The Patriarch, when thanking him,
could not conceal surprise that Trotsky, a Jew, should favour the head of a Church hostile to Israel.
Trotsky replied—

If you refer to the Jewish religion,
I have none. Religion to me is merely opium for the intellect. As to my origin, I cannot help being born a Jew, but I hate and despise all those of my race, and they know it, since they have cursed me in their synagogues!

When the Extremists assumed control of the Extraordinary Commission, Trotsky remained indifferent,
being perfectly aware that power based upon terrorism is short-lived, as Terror has a peculiar, unflinching logic
—it has perforce to gather impetus until a climax is reached, and is followed at once by a sudden collapse, which carries with it to ruin all its abettors. He did not object either to the Moderates taking over full control of Russia's economic life. He saw it was a worthless asset, as the country's welfare under Soviet rule
was doomed to complete disintegration in any case.

C.-H.C. OF RED ARMY.

Therefore, Trotsky's choice fell upon another source of power—he took over the supreme command of Russia's armed forces. This post was highly favourable for a political gambler; it gave him wide opportunities to play his own cards without being disturbed. Repeated counter-revolutionary outbreaks were deter-mental to the Soviet, but for Trotsky's purposes they were favourable. Threatening danger increased the importance of the Army's role.
He was granted a plausible pretext to insist on general mobilization. It helped the Soviet to solve the difficult question of holding in dumb submission an unreliable population of many millions by means of a few thousand devoted Communists; every male adult in the country, albeit for a time, could be militarized and put under a close and cruel discipline of a purely German pattern. For Trotsky this measure meant the autocratic control
of several million armed men.

The Polish invasion, Wrangel in the Crimea, and other military adventures, will all draw to a close someday. The Soviet will have no further pretext to postpone demobilization, and this will force the regime into a deadlock, since the compulsory Labour Decree is fated to be a complete fiasco. The Soviet as a whole

IN 1917.

GERMAN'S PEACE OFFER.

Baron Coppee, who has been arrested on a charge of selling benzol
and similar products to the Germans during the war, played, it would seem, a curious political part in 1917.
The Soviet, in a long article, declares that in that year a certain French lady whose daughter was married to a German submarine officer went from Germany to Havre through Switzerland with a German passport
to convey to Baron de Broqueville,
the Belgian Premier, German proposals for peace. In this affair Coppee, who was a friend of Baron de Broqueville, served as intermediary. The Germans offered to restore to Belgium her political,
territorial, and economic integrity
and to pay her damages; to cede Alsace-Lorraine to France, and to surrender Trieste and the Trentino to Italy. Germany, on the other hand, was to keep her colonies.

Baron de Broqueville introduced Coppee to M. Briand, although the affair was kept secret, neither the French nor the Belgian Cabinet being informed of it. Coppee proceeded to Switzerland with a view to meeting Bethmann Hollweg there, and some messages which he despatched to Baron de Broqueville through the Belgian Legation in Paris created suspicion. A secret sitting of the French Chamber took place, at which M. Ribot asked whether Belgium was still to be counted among the Allies.
The article in the Soviet has made a considerable sensation in Brussels,
and several deputes are determined to bring the matter before the Chamber. The Morning Post correspondent says that a report of M. de Gailfrier, the Belgian Ambassador in Paris, states that on November 2,
1917, at a lunch at the Hotel Meurice
M. Jules Cambon, formerly French Ambassador in Berlin, said to Baron de Broqueville:—"In these negotiations with Coppee you have been extremely indiscreet (leger)."

is fully aware of it; but finding no remedy it will be compelled in this emergency to rely exclusively on Trotsky.

A POSSIBLE DONAPARTE.

Whatever happens in Russia in the near future, any possible political change is certain to have Trotsky as its prime mover; assuming he is still alive—and his life is comparatively secure. When questioned lately on future prospects he sternly confessed—"Should we resign, I shall not cede my power to any but an absolute monarch. Terrorism alone would provoke general discontent sufficiently enough to give me a second chance in life to revolutionize Russia."
He is ready for the role of Bonaparte but dares not hope to be come Napoleon.

THE UNIVERSITY.

This is not to re-open the late controversy about University matters, but to warn the authorities that plans that are talked of for the future are not considered good. The Commission of Enquiry deal only, we understand, with finances, and if any appeal is to be made for further public support, we suppose we will learn sooner or later how our University stands as regards ammunition. As regards staff, it is understood that another professor has been induced to go, the inducement being £900 and a first-class passage. It is further understood that masters from local Government schools are to be asked to lecture at the University. No question of their fitness is raised. They did it, during the war, for pay; and so far as we know they did it well. It is understood, however, that they are now to be asked to do it in Government time. This cannot work without injury either to the University or the school they are taken from. Lectures require preparation, and school work (which requires full time and attention) must suffer if the lecturers are reasonably worked up. Superficially the signs do not indicate that the University is crippled for funds. They were recently advertising for tenders for tennis courts, and the cash paid in lieu of notice to the professors sent away may be noted in this connection. Surely economy, however necessary, can be managed in other directions than in whittling down the staff, and introducing part time lecturers who may be regarded as already sufficiently employed? There need be no acrimonious discussion in the public Press, that is certainly not desirable; but in the circumstances it would seem that more publicity is really necessary in the interests of the University and of education generally in the Colony, if such arrangements are to be put through by the Government without the advantage of public opinion or of expert advice. From all we can gather, we are inclined to think that the Director of Education, presumably acting for the Government, is not one who should be given an absolutely free hand. After all, how much authority should the local Government wield in this connection? Has not the University its own governing body? Some adjustment of the relations of these bodies seems called for, and how far it is likely to come about, so long as a Hush policy is persisted in, we do not care to prophesy.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY.

Open a restaurant. Sell lots of tickets. Then close temporarily, "for repairs." Re-open in a few days, and inform the customers who come with the tickets they paid for that the business has changed hands, and that they must pay again.

Up to a day or so of closing, the Victoria Cafe, between Jardine's and the Dragon Garage, sold books of tickets, "good for" ten meals, at the usual reduction on ordinary tariff. They gave no warning whatever that they were on the point of selling their business to a new proprietor who would not recognize their obligations.

There were complaints to the China Mail, which investigated. Recently we notified ticket holders that the re-opened cafe was honoring these tickets. This we were justified in doing, as on three separate occasions one of our representatives lunched there and was allowed, without question, to pay with one of the tickets, sold before the place temporarily closed. On Tuesday, however, a ticket holder had his ticket rejected, and was asked to pay cash. They referred him to the liquidator.

That gentleman, beyond assuring us that "the present owners are entirely different to the old ones, although they may be employing some of the staff of the former proprietor," offers no help. He says he does not know Ng Ma Chuen, whose signature is holographed across the back of the honoured tickets. But he is advertised as the liquidator of the old company, and announces a meeting of creditors for Monday at 11 a.m. Presumably holders of these tickets are creditors, and will be given an opportunity of saying what they think about this annoying way of doing business. To sell meal tickets within a day or so of closing down, and not to make arrangements with the new proprietor for honouring these, has a very unpleasant look about it. The employees who actually sold these dishonoured tickets are still there.

"POLICEMAN" AND "ONLOOKER."

The correspondence between "Onlooker" and "Policeman" is drifting the way of all such things, but we cannot help that. The China Mail is the ever open forum for public opinion, and we suppress no letters that we are not obliged to suppress by law or morals.

With regard to the point or points at issue, we consider both our correspondents are partly in the right. "Onlooker" was right to call public attention to what he saw, and "Policeman" was right to object to any false impression that a badly worded letter seemed likely to convey. It should have been obvious to anyone that "Onlooker" was not able to express his ideas properly in English, his knowledge of the language being far from perfect. It should also have been plain that no one would dream of contending that because some policemen are wicked, all policemen are wicked. The two will presumably go on "scoring off" each other contentedly and complacently until one or other of them gets tired of the sport. Meanwhile, readers who think it a bore are not obliged to read their letters. We refer to the matter chiefly to remind "Policeman" that newspapers when properly conducted are also policemen. The most important function of the Press partakes of the nature of police functions. We disagree with him entirely in his claim that the complaint or report should go in the first instance privately to the head of the police, not because we doubt that this official would investigate and deal with the matter properly, but because the proposition implies a denial of the proper and most important function of the Press, as a discoverer of matters requiring reform, and a permanent check on wrong-doing. More or less deliberate attempts have from time to time been made in Hongkong, sometimes with a regrettable measure of success, to discourage the Press from so functioning. We acquit "Policeman" of this intention, but that particular argument of his, if allowed to pass, will tend to further those misguided efforts. There is no reason why the head of the police, or any other official, should ignore complaints made in the Public Press. They could investigate any apparently reasonable charge of this sort just as well from information published as from information sent to them privately, but for this official local convention that no notice should be taken of the newspapers. Our method incidentally offers the public some guarantee that the matter will be attended to, for otherwise the public is entitled to assume that a charge ignored is a charge that is well founded, and that the officials who refuse to consider it are guilty of connivance. Moreover, such open complaints alarm the offenders, and discourage repetition of their faults. "Onlooker," of course, in this particular instance, would have been better advised to state simply just what did happen, and to leave general remarks on the subject to those better able to express and to weigh them. If he saw a really bad case of maltreatment, he should follow at a discreet distance, up to the Police Station, and respectfully ask the officer at the desk for permission to volunteer evidence of what he had seen, and then to give it calmly and unemotionally. But while that is what we would do, most people would consider it asked too much of them, and we should sympathise with their reluctance to take so much trouble. What then? Rather than have such things ignored, we would have them written to the China Mail, stating simply what they saw. "Policeman" would have them written to the C.S.P. He overlooks one simple consideration, that they have us to shield them from the malice of the officer accused, whereas they do not know for certain that the C.S.P. would be as careful for their interests.

WINSTON CHURCHILL
-CAUGHT OUT-

Mr. Winston Churchill is not at a rule of a pacifist disposition. His deliberate evasion of the Gollan issue therefore has a very special significance, says the New Witness. The entirely feeble and inadequate explanation of Mr. Bonar Law that the interview with the Russian general has been inaccurately reported in parts is apparently the only defence Mr. Churchill is prepared to offer. According to the document, which discovered by the Labour mission to Russia, has been reprinted in the Daily Herald, the Daily News and the Manchester Guardian, Mr. Churchill admitted that he was not only in close relations with Admiral Kolchak, but that he accepted the latter's instructions as to the manner in which he was to induce the Cabinet to recognise the Admiral's Government. A most damaging accusation, which Mr. Churchill refuses to meet. There are only two courses open to a man of honesty in such a matter; he must either repudiate the accusation, not in part but in whole, or attempt to justify the part he played. Had the document been a forgery Mr. Churchill would most certainly have said so. He is never afraid of vehement language and would have taken the earliest possible opportunity of phrasing his opinion. He has not done so, however, neither has he offered any explanation to the House of Commons. At the present moment therefore we are faced with the amazing spectacle of a Minister of War who, discovered to have been in negotiation with a foreign general, and to have pledged this country to a policy of aggression, refuses to make any statement, and is content to let under the imputation of the gravest possible nature; the facts so far as they are known very clearly show that on the plea of dispatching a relief force to Russia he was actually designing a campaign against that country. How far Mr. George was in his confidence it is impossible to say, nor is it worth while to emphasise the absurdity of a situation in which a Minister of War is able to involve the British Army without the avowed knowledge of the Cabinet or the consent of Parliament. Mr. Churchill's silence suggests that his negotiations with General Pilsudski in relation to the Polish campaign were on a par with his arrangements with Admiral Kolchak, and that at the very time that the Prime Minister was insisting on the necessity of resuming relations with the Soviet Government the Minister of War was actively assisting military measures against them. Parliament in its present decadent condition is apparently prepared to swallow the situation and the Georgian Press follows suit. There still remains, however, sufficient honesty and determination in the country to force things to an issue. Surely Mr. Churchill cannot be allowed to play pitch and toss not only with our national honour but with our army? We (China Mail) agree.

INCOME TAX
-SPECIALISTS-

It was pure coincidence that on the day we were answering "Stockbroker" about the recovery of income tax we received a letter from a Londoner calling himself an "income tax specialist." We did not print his letter—it was a cheeky attempt to get a free advertisement for his business address—but we inserted a parenthesis saying that for Britons resident abroad, claiming under the form we dealt with, these "experts" are expensive and quite unnecessary. That is so. The form issued from the Claims Branch, Cecil Chambers, 88, Strand, W.C.2, is so simple that any intelligent person reading it through carefully (and especially the lucid notes on the back can fill it up correctly and be sure (if he is entitled) of getting his money back. We achieved the feat ourselves without "expert" aid, and were successful every time.

The only item of fresh information in the letter we did not print was the statement that "relief is proposed to be extended to British subjects anywhere," and we do not know what it means, because British subjects everywhere, whose situation fitted the terms of the document, have always been entitled to this relief. It is probably an incorrect allusion to the movement afoot to relieve those who pay income tax at both ends—a circumstance manifestly unfair.

By the way, we do not profess ability to help those who are so fortunate (or unfortunate) as to "possess or retain the use of a residence in the United Kingdom." They are not "resident abroad" but they are sojourners, and in their case the business is fearfully and wonderfully complicated by the Act of 1918, and the assistance of an expert or "specialist" (meaning one who has mastered the ifs and tins of this weird Act) might well be invoked.

As briefly as possible this seems to answer local requirements:—All residents abroad pay tax at the highest rate on all income derived from the United Kingdom, and no claims of relief or repayment are admissible, unless the claimant (1) is or has been a Crown servant, (2) is a widow of a Crown servant, or (3) is a missionary, or (4) proves residence abroad "for the sake of health."

Thomas Reed might have been included in the list of quick-witted men of girth, though he objected to being called 'fat,' declaring that 'no gentleman weighs over three hundred pounds.'

CORRESPONDENCE.

A BID FOR "POLICEMAN'S" GRATITUDE.

[To the Editor of the China Mail.]

SIR,—I am delightfully pleased to read of "Policeman's" further remarks on the subject under review. His words are such that a still further comment on the matter is unnecessary to every degree. May I point out to him that when a subject is being discussed, by people like myself who desire to see things go in the right direction, there must be something serious about it. I note with particular interest, of what "Policeman" is really aiming at, when he continues to say that I ought not to blame the whole Force, just for the misconduct of one of its members. Who is he anyway? To the best of my remembrance, I have never been marking any special member of the Force for giving unnecessary treatment to would-be prisoners. I only give my comments on those who are accustomed to make arrests. If "Policeman" has his own way to think that too much public comments are unfair, then I would ask him for what reason or purpose, people sit up and think right away of a thing, and express it in the papers for people to read as well as for general discussion. "Policeman" as a defender of his title, ought in some ways to defend against "Injustice," and if he is really trying to come forward in the light as a valuable servant of his line, rendering protection to it whenever possible, which he of course is entitled to perform, should help to clear away some injustice. No doubt "Policeman" will remember something about the Juvenile Hawkers. The recent comments on the subject are still fresh in our minds, and as long as the children in the Courts are being fined and imprisoned, for not taking out a licence in their trade, (which on occasions they are bluntly refused), justice is on my side to say that somebody knows no law. Nothing has yet been done to this question, and is it fair and justifiable for "Policeman" to argue against comments of this sort.

In conclusion, I wish to point out to "Policeman" that all the while, I am lending him a hand for the good working of the Force to which he has the honour to belong, and am sharing in my part in the interests of the Colony for the continual welfare of "Our Force."—Yours, etc., "ONLOOKER."

RECOVERING INCOME TAX.

[To the Editor of the China Mail.]

DEAR SIR,—With reference to the leader in your issue of yesterday dealing with my letter to the Daily Press on the subject of reclaiming Income Tax, perhaps you will allow me to make the following observations:—

1st. My object was purely to inform the public of certain facts which had come to my notice as the result of an actual claim made for refund of Income Tax.

2nd. I thought by giving the facts publicly afforded by the Daily Press I should save myself the trouble of continually explaining to my clients what had to be done.

If you will again read my letter to the Daily Press you will observe that I distinctly stated that "There are other terms in the form referred to, but these two paragraphs cover most cases in which local residents are interested," which gives the impression (as it was intended to) that the information given did not purport to be complete and applicable to every case.

In accordance with your expressed desire, I enclose a copy of the Form, also the Income Tax Act of 1918 and a small book entitled "Your Income Tax"—a clear and simple guide. The last is really what it purports to be, but with the Act of 1918, and its 209 pages of close type, I humbly tender you my best wishes and sincere sympathy. If you can elucidate from it complete information for your readers on the reclaiming of Income Tax you will do a public service.

As facts are better than theories the following may interest you:—A. had 100 Hongkong Bank shares and through his attorney's inadvertence he was described in the Bank's London Register as domiciled in London. The Bank issued the dividend with Income Tax deducted at 6½ in the £.

A. then forwarded proof to London that he was not properly described as his domicile was Hongkong, and instructed his attorney in London to reclaim on his behalf. The attorney did so and obtained the refund. Incidentally A's income is over £700 per annum from Home securities of various kinds, and the securities are in the possession of the attorney who thus must be assumed to be in possession of the facts.

My impression is that your argument is based on conditions which formerly obtained but are no longer in force, but I will refrain from dogmatically stating that this is so, as the Act as you will presently realize, is not to be treated lightly, with impunity.

In conclusion, I accept your reproof in all humility, but if you will believe me, I never intended to swerve at the working man. My hit was

A TERRIBLE DEATH.

SEVENTY-FOOT FALL.

SCAFFOLDING COLLAPSES.

While engaged on some repair work on the roof of No. 6 B. Block, Military Quarters, Kennedy Road, on Wednesday, a Chinese youth fell a distance of 70 feet, and was killed instantaneously.

The unfortunate lad, it appears, was standing on a bamboo scaffolding hauling tiles to the roof of the building, when the scaffolding suddenly collapsed, bringing the youth down with it.

His remains were removed to the public mortuary.

LANDSLIDE ENQUIRY.

EARTH-COOLING'S DEATH.

JURY CENSURE CONTRACTOR.

"We find deceased (Lee Wing) met his death on the 7th, as a result of a landslide at Taiwan, Hunghom. In our opinion the accident could have been prevented had the contractor removed the earth on the top of the cutting at an earlier stage of the work. We consider that the contractor should have taken this precaution, especially in view of the abnormal rainfall this year," was the verdict returned (after a brief retirement) by Messrs. G. E. Stewart, F.C.M. Hurley and G. Strick, the jury which heard the inquiry conducted by Mr. R. O. Hutchison, as Coroner, into the death of a Chinese earth-cooler who was killed in a landslide at Taiwan, Hunghom, on August 7.

When the inquiry was resumed yesterday, Mr. A. S. MacKichan, the architect in charge of the work at Taiwan, stated that he did not give any instructions as regards the cutting of the earth. The matter of dealing with boulders was left to the contractor but if witness saw anything dangerous he would at once order steps to be taken. It was not the business of the overseer to order the face of the boulder to be cut off. The accident could hardly have been prevented if the boulder was not removed. It was more advisable to remove the boulder than to shore it up. The contractor was responsible for the shoring and any accident. This year's rainfall was abnormal.

rather at the Prime Minister, as I think almost anyone could have seen. As to "Booze Fighters" they are in evidence in almost any section of the community. The term was used for lack of a better.

My reply to your statement that "We could rub along without our stockbrokers but not without our workers" is that in Hongkong we did try to do without our Stock-brokers when our Stock Exchange was closed from 5th August to about 30th October, 1914. The experiment was not a success as the Banks quickly found that they could not value or realize the securities in their possession, against which advances had been made. We were then approached with a request to reopen, which we did, and eventually were instrumental in liquidating an amount, running into several millions of dollars, the bulk of which was sold here on Home account and invested in England in War Loans and other securities, not a bad effort for only fifteen "workers." I think you will have the justice to admit.

The most rudimentary knowledge of economics should suffice to convince anyone that a Stock Exchange has its place in any business community, just as clearly definable as, shall we say, a Bank's. Economic interdependence reaches out to almost any branch of legitimate trade it is possible to cite.

Kindly return the documents sent herewith after they have served your purpose.—Yours, faithfully,

JOHN W. TAYLOR.

MESOPOTAMIA.

STILL MORE TROUBLE IN KURDISTAN.

POLITICAL OFFICER KILLED

LONDON, August 18.
The Times correspondent at Teheran states that the situation in Mesopotamia is not improving. The line of communication in Persia has been completely interrupted. Bakuba, 30 miles from Baghdad has been looted. It is reported that Colonel Leachman, a well known political officer, was killed at Feluja. An attempt was made to murder a political officer at Erbil 50 miles from Mosul, indicating a recrudescence of trouble in Kurdistan. POSITION SUBSTANTIALLY IMPROVED.

LONDON, August 18.

Alarming reports having reached London, via Paris, that the situation in Mesopotamia is becoming worse and that the rebels are trying to encircle Baghdad, Reuter learns that the position last week was admittedly serious, but more recent reports indicate a general substantial improvement. Railway communications between Baghdad and Persia, Baghdad and Hillah, and Baghdad and Mosul have been restored.

AN UGLY INCIDENT.

GERMAN CROWD ATTACKS FRENCH CAVALRY.

BERLIN, August 18.

Crowds at Kattowitz in Silesia demonstrating against the Russo-Polish war, attacked French cavalry killing a trooper. The French replied with machine guns and grenades, killing nine and wounding twenty-six rioters. The police refused duty and the crowd besieged the police stations in order to obtain arms. The French ultimately withdrew from the streets. STREETS BARRICADED.

BERLIN, August 18.

Subsequent to the sanguinary encounter at Kattowitz, the people paraded the streets singing "Wacht am Rhein." They then sent a deputation to the inter-Allied Commission at Kattowitz at 11 o'clock in the night requesting the disarmament and withdrawal of the occupation troops. The French colonel emphatically declined and the crowd's anger increased. At 1 o'clock in the morning there was uninterrupted rifle fire. Hand grenade explosions were audible. It is reported that a French officer was then addressing the crowd. The Vossische Zeitung later reports that French troops barricaded all the streets of Kattowitz.

"COUNCIL OF ACTION."

REPRESENTATIVES FORCED TO LEAVE FRANCE.

PARIS, August 18.

Messrs. Adamson and Gosling departed for Britain this evening after a day's sojourn in Paris. When lunching in a boulevard cafe the Police Commissary intimated that if they had not left by this evening an expulsion order would be issued. The delegates subsequently visited the Interior and Foreign Offices with a view to obtaining permission to prolong their stay. Permission was refused.

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE IN AMERICA.

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE, August 18.

The House of Representatives ratified the women's suffrage amendment which the State Senate passed last week, Tennessee being the 36th State in favour of the measure. This makes the Bill valid which Congress already passed giving women the federal vote.

THE "NANKING."

NEW UPPER DECK.

IMPROVED VENTILATING SYSTEM.

A new upper deck was built on the China Mail steamship, "Nanking" while she was docked at San Francisco before her present homeward voyage.

Her boats have been placed on the newly constructed deck, thus leaving the whole of the spacious promenade deck for recreation and sports of the passengers. The life boats had formerly been on the promenade deck, which although wide, was not considered roomy enough for the 260 passengers the ship carries. The two weeks required for the building of the additional deck had been provided for by the company in making up the ship's schedule so that she is still running on the previously announced time.

A new midship ventilating system will be installed in the "Nanking" at Hongkong on this trip. The new system will greatly improve the ventilation of the cabins on the second and third decks.

On her return voyage the "Nanking" will take to America 250 Chinese university students who are being sent under the terms of the return of the American share of the Boxer indemnity. They will be distributed to various universities throughout the United States.

A HOLD UP.

JUDGE VERSUS CRACKERS.

A SUPREME COURT EPISODE.

For about ten minutes the business of the Appeal Court was held up this morning by the explosion of a long string of crackers. For two or three minutes the Acting Chief Justice matched his vocal organs against the noise. He lost. He stopped the reading of his judgment and leaning back held converse with his learned brethren, awaiting a cessation of the din. As the minutes passed the smiles faded from the faces of judges and counsel, an extremely bored look becoming general. At last came the nerve-shattering finale. Wigs were adjusted and the judgment proceeded. But only for half a dozen words. The noise of crackers rang out again but it was only a short spasm and the Court proceeded with its business.

TYPHOON WARNING.

The telegram quoted below was received by the American Consulate General from the Manila Observatory at 10 p.m., yesterday—
Low-pressure area extending from China Sea to the Pacific, across Northern Luzon and the Balingtang Channel. A real Typhoon may develop later.

APPEAL DISMISSED.

THE KUNG HONG CASE.

THIS MORNING'S JUDGMENT.

The Full Court of Appeal, consisting of the Acting Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Gompertz, Mr. Justice Turner, and Mr. Justice Wood, gave judgment in the appeal of Fong Yung Chau (appellants) and Wong Lam Sang and Chan Tse Hing (respondents), in which the appellants asked that the judgment in this action given on June 16th 1920 be set aside and that a new trial be had on the grounds that the verdict was contrary to the weight of the evidence and that since the date of the judgment it had come to the knowledge of the appellants that the steamship Kung Hong was attached by the Magistrate of the Hoi Fung district, prior to the date of alleged agreement for sale and the respondents have shown that such evidence could not under reasonable exertion have become known to the appellants, prior to the date of the said judgment, and that Mr. Justice Gompertz improperly admitted in evidence in this action evidence to the effect that the respondents were entitled as principals to claim on a Chinese document dated January 10 1919, which was signed by Chan Tse Hing in which he was described as owner of the "Kung Hong."

In the Court below the respondents were defendants in an action brought by Wong Lam Sang and Chan Tse Hing in respect to the purchase of the ship Kung Hong, running between Hongkong and Shan Mi. Plaintiffs alleged that the defendants agreed to purchase the vessel for $76,000 but failed to do so, thereby causing plaintiffs to suffer damages to the extent of $21,547.

The judgment was for the plaintiff, Mr. W. H. Drummond, instructed by Mr. W. B. Hind, appeared for the appellant, and Mr. Eldon Potter and Mr. F. C. Jenkin instructed by Mr. G. R. Haywood, for the respondents. In the course of his judgment the Acting Chief Justice said the first ground of the appeal was that the finding in favour of the respondents in the Court below was against the weight of the evidence. He had listened very carefully to the argument for the appellant but he was unable to alter the findings of fact at which he arrived in the Court below. His Lordship formed a very poor opinion of the appellant's candour when he was in the witness box and had occasion to caution him more than once that unless he would return a straightforward answer to a plain question it was bound to tell against him. The appellant's case on this ground failed.

On the ground that fresh evidence had been obtained by the appellant since the date of the judgment His Lordship commented on the affidavits that had been filed and remarked that the Court asked Mr. Drummond to satisfy them that if admissible this evidence would be in any way conclusive in favour of the appellant. It was put to Mr. Drummond that the attachment of the vessel appeared to be by way of security only, that it appeared that the vessel was released on a bond being given and that in any case she would have been finally released on the payment of a sum of $17,000. Mr. Drummond admitted that he could put his case no higher than this and was informed that the evidence seemed to the Court in no way conclusive and would not appear to be a valid defence. The Court refused to hear Mr. Drummond on the ground that it was not covered by his notice of motion. Mr. Drummond then applied for leave to amend his notice of motion. The appellant filed a declaration on August 10, in which he stated that the documents obtained from the Chinese Court afforded conclusive evidence that the ship at all relevant times was not the property of the respondents. This information then was before the appellant's legal advisers for at least a week, yet no application was made to amend until the point had been decided against him. In His Lordship's opinion the application was too late. On the third ground that evidence was improperly admitted, His Lordship reviewed the practice of the Court in dealing with Chinese documents and held that this ground also failed. Dealing with the application suggesting that evidence should be taken on the translation of a Chinese document His Lordship said that in his view it was no more than an application by a party who had failed in the Court below to be allowed to call now evidence which was available to him at the trial but which he did not choose to call. He thought the appeal should be dismissed with costs.

Mr. Justice Skinner Turner also gave a written judgment, being of opinion that the appeal should be dismissed with costs.

Mr. Justice Wood agreed. Mr. Potter explained to their lordships that it had been necessary for them to get certain documents from Canton in reply to an affidavit by the other side. He asked that the expenses in connection with this should be allowed.

Mr. Drummond raised no objection, simply asking for an undertaking.

POPULAR INSPECTOR.

LEAVES FOR HOME.

SIXTEEN YEARS IN HONGKONG.

The Hongkong Police Force has lost another valued member by the departure at noon to-day, on the s.s. "Kalyan," of Sub-Inspector James Hedge, who is retiring on well earned pension after sixteen years' faithful service in the Force. Inspector Hedge arrived in Hongkong on May 15, 1904. He saw four years' service at the front.

A very popular man, Inspector Hedge was much esteemed by his colleagues who gave him a right royal send off. Among the many difficult cases Inspector Hedge has tackled during his connection with the Force, the Mee Cheong Studio robbery and the motor bandits, both of which are quite recent, will be best remembered. In both these cases, Inspector Hedge took a prominent part and it was through his untiring efforts that the studio robber and at least one of the bandits were brought to justice. For this notable service, Inspector Hedge was recently awarded the Police medal. We join with his friends and colleagues in wishing Inspector Hedge a bon voyage and the best of luck.
